Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 25,30,31,34-38,47,52,53,56-60,65-72 and 77-82 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Eversull, et al.-WO 03/090834 A2 in view of Gill, et al.-EP 0206553.

Eversull discloses a method of providing percutaneous access to a gastrointestinal or urogenital tract including the steps of inserting a guidewire into the tract, percutaneously inserting an expandable tubular structure 120 over the guidewire into the tract, providing a constraining jacket 180 with perforations 186 for constraining an expandable access cannula which is insertable into gastrointestinal or urogenital tracts and expanding the tubular structure. Eversull discloses that the distal end of the expandable cannula is beveled (pg 15 lines 3-7). The outer sheath can be attached to the expandable cannula see pg 20 lines 10-12, or it can be a completely separate sheath. It is not specifically disclosed that the device is inserted into the renal collection system. However, the examiner contends that either the areas of insertion disclosed by Eversull meets this limitation, or in the alternative, it would have been obvious to have used it in such an area, as it was known to use similar expandable cannulas in this area as taught by Gill.

Claims 25,30,31,34-38,47,52,53,56-60,65-72 and 77-82 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gill, et al.-EP 0206553 in view of Eversull, et al.-WO 03/090834 A2.

Gill discloses a method of providing percutaneous access to a renal collection system including the steps of inserting a guidewire into the system, percutaneously inserting an expandable tubular structure over the guidewire into the renal system; and expanding the tubular structure. However, releasing the expanded tubular structure from a constraining tubular jacket by tearing the jacket along perforations is not disclosed. However, Eversull discloses that it was known to provide a constraining jacket with perforations for constraining an expandable access cannula which is insertable into gastrointestinal or urogenital tracts. It would have been obvious to have provided Gill with such a constraining tubular jacket in order to prevent the unintended expansion of the expandable access cannula during insertion and until expansion is desired.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 26-29,48-51,61-64 and 73-76 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
